Organizing Department: Botany
In Association with: National Society of the Friends of Trees
Participants: Over 200 participants (colleges, institutes, and NGOs including students, teachers, researchers, lay persons and activists, Japanese exchange students on campus)
Date: 13thFeb. 2020

Description:

The national seminar aimed at understanding and creating awareness about the importance of tree ecology for incorporation of correct management practices in urban forestry. The participants gained knowledge about crop improvement, full sib breeding, development of control pollination techniques and hybrids in native and exotic trees, ecology of Western Ghats, the inevitable consequences of logging and mining – all the enticing aspects of development and of livelihoods- together with devastating deforestation and poverty, Markets as both supply chains of global MNCs prospecting for natural herbs- as well as hundreds of local retail and internet outlets, Conservation by connecting ecologies with sustainable community livelihoods by leveraging the positive side of markets i.e. Sustainability, amidst the spectre of global and local Climate Change; sacred groves in the Western Ghats act as a refuge for the relic flora of this region; Urban forests and green spaces are integral components of urban ecosystems, contributing to reduced pollution and enhanced environmental quality, quality of life and sustainable urban development, ecosystem services and their valuation methods. A lot of awareness among the participants was created because of the lectures in the seminar. MSc-I students around a theme of 'reuse, recycle and innovate' kept exhibits of cloth materials, cloth bags coloured with natural dyes, and also eco-friendly lip balms, under their newly started brand 'Salrin' making use of natural dyes from fallen tree remains and naturally available resources to protect the environment and keep the consumer safe from harmful chemicals. Some interested students got to showcase their talent and efforts through putting stalls of bio-jewellery, natural dye coloured fabrics, herbal cosmetics, indoor succulents. Mr. Praveen Kale, Assistant Curator of Blatter Herbarium also exhibited herbarium plant specimens and publications (books) of Blatter Herbarium. Many people visited and even a group of Japanese students were interested in it. Many participants purchased these small items. They got to meet the people who fund and encourage such start-ups. It was a good meeting point for people from diverse areas like NGO, researchers, students, academicians and they interacted to share their ideas among them.

(Community Representative from Indo Tibetan Border Region, Uttarakhand) and Dr. Pratiba Naitthani. The conference gave the students a 360 degree understanding of the significance of the environment and different facets of the environment.

On the same day, i.e. the 29th of January 2020, the department also set up a small Herbal Garden with each guest, who came for the National Conference. They all planted a sapling. This activity was part of the Swachh Bharat campaign.

The Department Magazine 'Samvad' was released during Evolve. The theme of Samvad this year was 'People and the Planet: Saving the Symbiosis' containing research papers and articles contributed by students from different streams. All the research papers were written on the theme of 'Environment'. It was heart-warming to see the overwhelming response from students to write for the magazine on such a serious and important topic.

- 'Shove it in your Coconut' – Eco-friendly Flower Pot Making

Organizing Department: Botany Association of Xavier's (BAX)

Participants: FY, SY, TY Botany students

Date: 9th Dec. 2019

Description:

Under Botany Association of Xavier's (BAX), an activity was held in the college woods on 9th December 2019 at 2.40pm for FY, SY and TY students who were interested. The activity was called as 'Shove it in your coconut' which involved designing sustainable non-plastic pot for your sapling which could be taken home. The committee members of the BAX brought half cut coconuts, the participants were asked to add soil and saplings in it, decorate it and carve it like Halloween pumpkin. The purpose of this activity was to create awareness among students about using pots which are provided by nature. The coconut pot is not only rigid structure but also provides little nutrients to the saplings and more than that maintains the moisture and water level in the soil. The soil can absorb water which is stored in the fibres of coconut as these fibres have a high water storage capacity which provides water in times of water scarcity. The coconut pot also give scope for creating designs on the outer surface by carving it with some designs, figures, and drawings. This also makes the pot look very decorative and beautiful. The students enjoyed the activity and also carried the potted saplings to their homes to keep it in their house. The students learnt the technique of simple potting. This activity created some interest among the students for plants, love for growing indoor plants and thus also take up as an hobby to grow house plants.

Organizing Department: Hindi

In association with: Vanashakti & TISS Field Project Prayas (more than 40)

Participants: FYBA Hindi and French students

Description:

40 odd students led by Dr. Bhagwati Upadhyay participated in a tree plantation drive organized by the Vanashakti NGO and TISS Field Project Prayas in Navjeevan Mahila Vastigruh, a state-run shelter for women rescued from human trafficking, in Chembur. Armed with spades, shovels and tree saplings, students planted various trees and plants like lemon, mango, etc. and put up posters they had created. They were also joined by the Director of Vanashakti NGO, Mr. Stalin D, who led the students in the proper planting of the saplings and taught them how to identify various plants. The students had a small glimpse into not just the strenuous labour of farming, but also its feeling of reward. They learned about the need to conserve the diversity of plant species and were also able to contribute to providing a better, happier environment to the women of the shelter, who would see the trees bloom in the coming months and enjoy the fruits.

problems around the city, the festival in collaboration with 'The Green Umbrella' organised a Tree Plantation Drive. This registered charitable organisation in India works extensively against the evils of deforestation and climate change by undertaking rigorous efforts of native forest restoration. On a Sunday morning, the organizing committee and the members of the organisation assembled together with grit and enthusiasm to induce a green wave at the patch between Vikhroli east highway and Godrej. Guided with precise instructions and assistance to fulfil the target of planting around 50 trees, the plantation drive began in full swing. With young students split up into groups, they experimented with digging tools, plants and bamboo stakes. It was an experience and a skill to develop for every person out there. The entire event was joined by the principal Dr. Rajendra Shinde who not only gave a helping hand but also spilled the beans on trivia about peepal plants. Within a span of three hours, stood firm a row of freshly planted trees that emanated a ray of hope to battle the appalling heat of the city. This drive gracefully highlighted the fact that small endeavours are the stepping stones to combat the raging environmental issues.
